EDITORIAL

Dear Esteemed Readers,

It is with great pleasure and profound pride that we present to you the fourth and final issue of our journal for the year 2024. This issue features a total of fifteen articles, which encompass twelve original research articles, two case reports, and one comprehensive review article. These contributions explore a wide range of topics within the diverse and dynamic field of veterinary medicine.

The articles included in this issue have been selected based on the chronological order of their acceptance, and we, as the editorial team, have made every effort to maintain this sequence in the interest of fairness and transparency. We believe it is essential to present your valuable work to the scientific community in a manner that reflects both its academic rigor and its timely relevance.

At this juncture, I would also like to take a moment to remind you of the journal's current standing in the academic community. According to the Web of Science (WOS) database, our journal holds a rank in the Q3 quartile, while it is ranked in the Q2 quartile according to the Scopus database. These achievements reflect the journal's growing influence and the high caliber of research we are privileged to showcase.

Furthermore, I wish to express my deepest gratitude to each of you for the trust you have placed in us by submitting your scholarly work. Your contributions are of immense value to the field of veterinary medicine, and it is an honor for us to be a part of your academic journey.

In closing, I would like to extend my warmest regards to all of our readers. We sincerely hope that this final issue of the year will make a meaningful contribution to the ongoing advancement of scientific knowledge and practice in the veterinary field.
